Never Enough Jade

Fortune International does it again, this time with Jade Signature.

The next chapter in Fortune International's prestigious collection of Jade buildings is popping up on Sunny Isles Beach. Jade Signature will be designed by the world-renowned firm of Herzog & de Meuron—the very same outfit that has been crafting the much-anticipated Pérez Art Museum Miami about to open in December—and the ocean views are the star here, visible from all levels. And while it's luxe all the way, Jade Signature is also kid friendly, with a "teen tech lounge" featuring the most advanced gaming and technology, and a toddler sensory and reading center (these are sophisticated kiddies, after all). While they're busy, parents can indulge in the spa and water terrace, with their co-ed hammam, cold rain shower, oceanfront massage beds and a yoga deck surrounded by a Zen garden. Prices for residences inside the 57-story building, including six two-story Sky Villas and two Signature penthouses with 360-degree views—range from $2 million to over $26 million.
